

A Cubic World

Suppose you find yourself standing on a cube-shaped planet of mass M , side length a , and uniform density. You are floating in space directly above the center of one of the faces of the planet with a distance b between you and the surface. You are a point mass with mass m . What force of gravity do you feel?