To All Faculty and Staff:

On November 8th, Stevens will join colleges, universities, corporations, non-profits, and K-12 schools across the country in the National First-Generation College Student Celebration, known as Celebrate First-Gen Day. A first-generation college student is defined as someone whose parent(s) or legal guardian(s) have not graduated from a four-year college or university. Stevens is committed to providing an academic experience where first-generation students can thrive.

Please take a few minutes to explore the First-Generation College Students website to see testimonials from Stevens first-generation students, faculty and staff and learn about the history of Celebrate First-Gen Day. And visit the Celebrate First-Gen Day tables on Monday, November 8th in the Babbio Atrium and on the Howe Center 2nd Floor from 11:00 am - 2:00 pm to find out more about the resources available to support our outstanding First-Gen students.

If you were a first-generation college student and are interested in connecting with current first-generation Stevens students, contact Nicholas Jones (njones4@stevens.edu), Assistant Director for Special Programs, for more information.

Sincerely,

Susan Metz
Executive Director of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion
